

Wish's Warning

By Gary Val Tenuta

My name is Wish. How do you do?
Is there something I can do for you?

Now before you begin building fences
Have you considered the consequences?

When you deal with me it would be wise
Some caution for to exercise.

What at first I appear before your eyes
Just might be something in disguise.

And I do not owe an explanation
If I overstep your expectation.

Truly, I assure you my intentions
Are always in the right directions.

It's just that I'm aware of what is Me
And I may be more than you can see:

A pebble removed from a mountain side
Disturbs the order of the Cosmic Tide.

One wish to taste forbidden fruit
Brought all mankind to follow suit.

Now I must leave, It's getting late
And others are thinking of tempting Fate.

They must be warned as you have been
Before, too late, they wish again.
